Great Ways of Getting Around the Green Way

Electric cars are environmentally friendly, but other means of electric transport are even friendlier! They can benefit their users in different ways.

Gavin

I operate my electric skateboard with a remote control and steer it by shifting my weight on the board. It's safer than a normal skateboard because it has brakes. It's great for dodging the traffic and it doesn't pollute at all. It's also ideal for practising my favourite sport – kite surfing. That's because you stand in many different positions and this helps your kite surfing techniques. I'm training for a kite surfing competition, so I hope I win!

Jenny

In my job I have to get around quickly. I'm a policewoman and I don't know where I'd be without my electric scooter. It's faster than walking the beat and I get less tired. I can also use it when I'm working indoors in places like airports. You ride standing up so you can watch over a large area. It's cleaner than patrolling in a police car, too, as it uses rechargeable electric batteries.

Phil

I own an e-bike and, for me, it's the best way to travel. I want to help the environment so I try not to use my car very often. I am suffering from backache at the moment so it's difficult to ride a normal bike. With the e-bike you don't have to pedal – you just let the motor do all the work! I love it! I go shopping on it every day, and it's more economical than using my car!

- 1 Gavin doesn't use his skateboard on busy roads.
- 2 Gavin's skateboard makes him better at doing something.
- 3 Jenny never works inside buildings.
- 4 Jenny drives a car with rechargeable batteries.
- 5 Phil thinks normal bikes aren't as easy to use as e-bikes.
- 6 Phil says using an e-bike is a good way to save money.
